their country and in several countries not only selling goods but also services. Intellectual property rights (IPRs) are country specific, but have imperative influence on global economy. Issues of legislations, trademarks, registrations, copy rights, infringement and domain names are all related and complex issues which each educated individual should be aware of.

The focus area of the seminar is "Indian Perspective of Infringement of Intellectual Property Rights". IPR can be defined as "it is a creation of mind, invention, literary and artistic works and symbols, names and images used in commerce". When one tries to answer the obvious question what is IPR one can boil it down to that it is like any other property rights which allow the creator or owners or patents, trademarks or copyrighted works to benefit from their own work or investment in creation. The importance of protecting intellectual property is because the progress and well being of humanity rests on its capacity to create and invent new works in the area of technology and culture. The legal protection of new creation encourages the commitment of additional resources for further innovation. Therefore IPR system helps strike a balance between the interests of innovator and the public interest providing an environment in which creativity and invention can flourish for the benefit of all.

More than twenty million people across the world have contracted the deadly disease and over 3.5 lac people have lost their lives so far. Coronavirus contagion is spreading rapidly and trapping people and becoming worst in case of people with weak immunity and already suffering from some medical conditions. The human immune system is designed such that lets our body to prevent us from all kinds of infections and diseases. Therefore, as a preventive measure doctors and fitness trainers advise us to boost immunity with good diet, regular exercises and active lifestyle. Exercise is highly preferred option by experts to keep one fit to keep the immune system active and strong. Immune system of the human being works with the positive psyche. Unfortunately, due to coronavirus pandemic we are unable to move out of our houses, unable to go to gym, parks, grounds and stadium for regular physical exercises and sports practices. For the sportsperson when they are away from the practice sessions and competitive sports, there is a probability that they start losing confidence and develop issues relating fitness that may haunt them. On the basis of all these perspectives related to human health and fitness there is no doubt that immunity plays a vital role. Therefore, organizers felt the need of an academic discussion on the current topic of the webinar.
