On

Research Methodology

The core objective of the workshop was to equip the research scholars with set of skills and potentiality to undertake the research very effectively in the disciplines of social science and to turn completed research into publishable material of high quality in the form of articles, journals and books. This workshop is designed to offer the practical guidelines and direct the researchers through all the stages of research from identifying a research problem to the submission of a dissertation, report writing and research articles. The course intends to deal with variety of qualitative and quantitative research methods use in social science researchers. It also gives exposure to data analyses with the help of software packages. By the end of the workshop, they are expected to develop conceptual clarity and practical knowledge to undertake quality research and writing good research papers field-reports and project proposals, etc. The workshop commenced, after the registration of the participants, introductions and inaugural function.

Day One

The first session was handled by Nikhil Atale, Development consultant, Govt. of Maharashtra & Visiting faculty, RTM Nagpur University & Sant Gadgebaba Amravati University, on 29th July 2022. He had guided research scholars on the topic 'Research Methodology; Theoretical and Philosophical Base' where he emphasized on research should be organized and logical. There is no research without a problem so, a research scholar must find the problem in various fields. He said that a research student must put his arguments systematically with valuable resources to prove his opinions. According to him, imagination is the highest point of research, so the power of imagination brings out good research. He also stated that no researcher should consider his research as 100%, because there is nothing which exists as 100%, and no research has taken as 100% truthful research.

- All empirical research is based on assumptions.
- Even purely "descriptive" or "exploratory" studies necessarily involve choices about the phenomena and variables to observe and the level of detail at which to observe them.
- Researchers planning an empirical study confront the challenges of making these assumptions explicit, examining them critically, and designing the investigation to yield data that permit those assumptions to be evaluated and modified appropriately.

Day Two

This session was taken by Dr. Pramanand Bawankule, Head, Dept. of Marathi, Chintamani Mahavidyalaya, Pombhurna Dist. Chandrapur, on 30th July 2022. He delivered his lecture on ‘Types of Research and Research Design’, where he explained what is research, and types of research in detail. He spoke the quantitative type of methodological issues and the qualitative type of methodological issues and the advantages and disadvantages of these two methods. He also taught the current trend of using hybrid methodology or mixed methods where we combine these two methods. He traced that finding truth must be a primary motive of a selected research topic. Having explained what a research design is, he further discussed subdivision in the form of Descriptive, Exploratory and Experimental Research Designs. The speaker also explained research design and research-based evidences. He said that the language of research should not be figurative but accurate, exact and clear. He also dealt with the different problem of research scholars while pursuing research and accurately guided them. Participants were also provided with opportunities to respond to each other’s queries. This question answer session enabled clarifying some of the misunderstanding of various methodological issues in designing research.

She stated the difference between the method of collecting Primary and Secondary data since primary data are to be originally collected, while in case of secondary data, the nature of data collection work is merely that of compilation. She also highlighted the different methods of collecting primary data, particularly in surveys and descriptive research. She also talked about why, how, when and which data methods or tools of data collection use in research. She pointed out that researcher should remember the philosophy of GIGO (Garbage in and Garbage out) when we collect data. ### Approaching the literature review

- You are expected to 'place' your research in the existing academic literature.
- Simply describing the literature should be avoided. A critical and analytical judgement which demonstrates how/where your work is best placed as well as work that needs developing is essential.
- Your work should contribute to existing literature in the field.
- Ensure consideration is given to the methodological and/or theoretical arguments that inform the literature.
- Be aware of how research paradigms influence the research.

On the last day of the programme, the resource person Dr. Sudesh Bhowate, Head, Dept of English, Dr. MWPWS Arts, Commerce & Science college, Nagpur, excellently presented his lecture on “Writing Report, Research Paper and Monograph”. He emphasized that research guide should give liberty to researchers to explore their own ideas, so the research thesis should not be influenced by the guide. He told that before landing on Ph.D one should have motivation or a problem which should lead them to do research genuinely. They should need to work upon certain topics for larger interest. He stressed that students should not choose repeated topic but unexplored area. He signified the importance of extensive reading to write a good thesis, later he explained structuring a thesis in detail.

Dr. Sudesh Bhowate giving the outline of the course

Finally, the last session was devoted for the participants to share their experience. The course convenor gave enough time for scholars to share their experience. Most of the participants had an opinion that this was the most valuable and memorable workshop that they have attended because all the particularities of doing research was covered by workshop right from identifying a research problem, to formulate a research problem, developing a research design, developing a research hypothesis, preparing questionnaire and interview schedule, collecting data, entering it in SPSS, doing data analysis, doing qualitative research including ethnography, Case study, phenomenology and finally report writing. All these aspects were covered in the workshop. Also the students gave suggestion that it would be better if adequate time is given for them to discuss their own research topic with resource person.

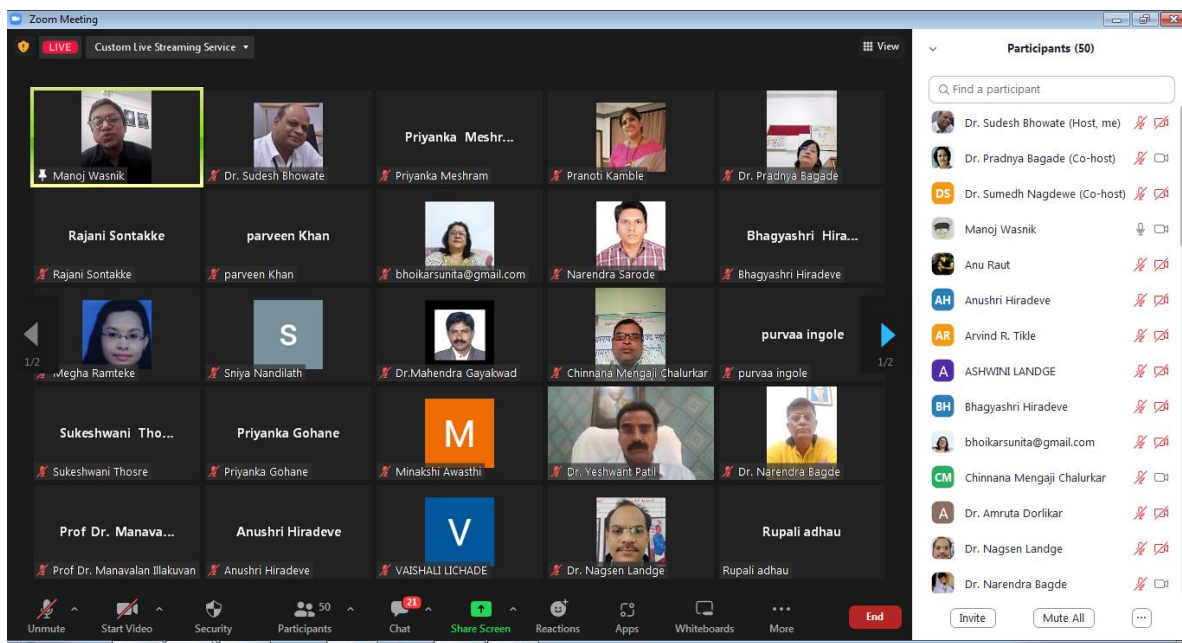

To conclude the research methodology workshop for Ph.D scholars turned out to be a rich experience for the participants, raising their confidence to proceed with quality output.

Adv. Manoj Waskin interacting the audience

Mr. Manoj Wasnik, honorable joint secretary of the People Welfare Society, spoke about research methods that how researchers should start their journey of research. He also focused on the development of indigenous research techniques and methods which will be more rational and socially relevance to different themes of research.
