Report on One Day Symposium for Ph.D Scholars

On behalf of research cell of the college One Day Symposium for Ph. D Research Scholars was organized on 4th February 2020. The topic of the symposium of Relevance of Research Topic and Difficulties in Research. The Research cell of the college is one of the vibrant departments of the institution and it conducts various academic and research activities to foster and boost up the research potential of the research scholars, working for their doctoral research keeping in mind the research cell organized one day symposium for the budding research scholars confronting different obstacles issues and problems while conducting their research in respected areas. Dr. Pranoti Chukerbutty, Ex Principal and Former HOD of English, Dr. Madhukarrao Wasnik PWS College was invited as the Resource Person for the first session. Dr. Yeshwant Patil, the Principal of the college inaugurated the Symposium. Dr. Sudesh Bhowate, HOD of English, conducted the proceedings.

Being the chairperson of the first session, Dr. Pranoti Chukerbutty said that since the opening of the college, fostering research was a need and now the dream has come true with the vibrant research cell of the college. While advising the budding research, she stressed that the research scholars should discuss their area of interest and the current themes, modern thoughts theory and methods to analyse the text. Modern theories must be taken in the critical analysis of the text so the traditional and old method research needs to be updated. A research scholar must be serious about the plagiarism and copy paste approach. He must concentrate on his own thoughts; his insights and perspectives need to be clear. She expressed her inner gloom that unfortunately the research scholars do not go through original text and references while doing research. The research students should try their hands with publication of research articles and papers in peer review on online reputed journals. Finally, she focused on a clear understanding of the research topic and deep understanding regarding critical theories.

During his inaugural address Dr. Yeshwant Patil spoke on the available facilities to accelerate the research in the institution. He also expressed his anguish over the shortcut methods and malpractices adopted by the Ph.D research students. He said that students should regularly visit the library and nurture reading habits. He provided different creative ideas to collect references adopted for research work and guided about the different institutions throughout the country seeking good and upgraded research study materials. Dr. Sudesh Bhowate, the Convenor of this Research Cell conducted the proceedings of the inauguration and first session.

After a short Tea Break, the Second Session of the Symposium held in august presence of Dr. Mithilesh Awasthi, HOD of Hindi, as a Resource Person. Dr. Indrajeet Orke, HOD of Marathi, conducted the proceedings of the session. While advising the oncoming research participants in the symposium, Dr. Awasthi highlighted and documented certain rules, needs and methods in doctoral research. He said that while presenting facts there should not be emotions. A research scholar must analyse both sides of the writer. They should not rely on pen drive or parallel backup kept on their PC. They should keep their thesis on their email to keep the thesis protected. Research scholars should follow the research design or synopsis while conducting their doctoral research, what is unexplored, undiscovered, untouched, unknown, unexperienced should be chosen by the research scholar and the research must bring out his research into book form.

23 participants from different disciplines conducting their research from the college research center and other institutions were enrolled for the symposium. Every participant presented their research synopsis and discussed the contains. After the presentation the session was open for the question answers or for open discussion. Some valuable and significant questions were put forward by the participants and resource person answered them relevantly. All participants were awarded certificates for their active participations by the organisers. All the teachers in different departments, visiting faculties and non-teaching staff attended the symposium.
